The New Yorker Obama Cartoon, Bike Commuting and Laptop Searches

07/14/2008 at 1:00 p.m.

The New Yorker magazine cover cartoon this week shows a turban-wearing Barack and gun-toting Michelle Obama in the White House. An American flag burns in the fireplace. The New Yorker says the cartoon satirizes the worst scare tactics being used against Obama. Obama's campaign manager calls it tasteless and offensive. What do you think?

Also today, is the high cost of gas driving you to two wheel commuting this summer? Are you a new bike commuter? How's it going? Is it safe? How easy, or hard, is it for you to bike to work?

And for the past 18 months, immigration officials at border entries have been searching electronic files on some citizens' laptops and cellphones when they return from international trips. Civil rights groups say it's unconstitutional and they want the Department of Homeland Security to stop.
